There is a paucity of clear consensus on the diagnosis and treatment of CMV endocarditis. The objective of this study is to review and provide clear consensus-based recommendations for the diagnosis and management of CMV endocarditis. A multi-disciplinary Endocarditis Consensus Group was convened to review relevant published literature. This group consists of internationally recognized endocarditis specialists who provide direct patient care. Expert opinion was developed and then reviewed using a modified Delphi technique for consensus. The recommendations were graded using a grading scheme that takes into consideration both the quality and quantity of evidence supporting each recommendation. The recommendations included: 1) assessing for risk factors for CMV endocarditis; 2) the value of using quantitative PCR in the diagnosis of CMV endocarditis; 3) the clinical diagnosis of CMV endocarditis; 4) the diagnosis and 4bc0debe42
