Getting started InDesign is the most powerful page layout program in the universe, but don't let its size stop you. You can start using it as soon as you install it on your computer. The first thing you need to do is open the program and choose the View⇒Window menu and then the Pages or Layout option, as shown in Figure 6-7. This opens the standard application window. FIGURE 6-7: The Pages or Layout view is the main part of the InDesign program. After you make sure that the Pages or Layout view is open, you can open and start working with your first file. Just double-click the file to open it, and you're in business. You may be tempted to start with the InDesign interface, but doing so opens up a large learning curve for a novice user. It's a much better idea to start out using the Creative Suite with Photoshop for all

Three-Dimensional Transitional Metal Halide Perovskite Ultrahigh-Sensitivity Stretchable Sensors via Core-Shell Nanoparticle Encapsulation. We report on a novel strategy for robust and ultrahigh-sensitive stretchable sensors based on three-dimensional (3D) core-shell-structured perovskite nanoparticles that can be readily integrated into semiconducting elastomers. The core-shell-structured perovskite nanoparticles were fabricated via simultaneous solvothermal reactions, which is essential to achieve a high-density structure, and selective etching of the core or shell (CaF<sub>2</sub> or PbI<sub>2</sub>, respectively). These 3D perovskite core-shell-structured nanoparticles were used as sensitive elements for fabricating ultrahigh-sensitive stretchable sensors, and the overall structure and corresponding mechanism were carefully studied. As demonstrated, a low elastic modulus and a high-density core-shell nanoparticle structure can significantly enhance the sensitivity to pressure. The device characterization results show that the proposed perovskite sensors can offer ultrahigh sensitivity ( $\approx 11.5 \text{ kPa}^{-1}$ ) and wide-operating-range detection, and they show excellent performance even after being shrunk by  $\sim 87.5\%$  in length. The proposed core-shell-structured perovskite nanoparticle sensors and related sensing mechanisms exhibit great promise in a wide range of pressure- and stretch-based sensing applications.. Suppl. 1, p. 134 (2015). The human body is a center of complex signaling, including cytokine signaling and heat-shock response signaling. Using bioinformatics methods, we identified genes that may be involved in the pathogenesis of chronic inflammatory disease. We found that the genes are often expressed in the immune system, which may explain the mechanism of the development of this disease. 2a-c : The expression of ApoA1, HSPA1A, and HSPA1B in peripheral blood monocytes of ESRD patients was significantly higher than that of the normal subjects, while ApoA2 was lower 2d-f : The expression of HSPA1A, HSPA1B, and CHIP in peripheral blood monocytes of ESRD patients was significantly lower than that of the normal subjects, while ApoA1 was higher. \*\*Competing interests\*\* The authors declare that they have no competing
